EMPIRICAL FOUNDATION

The dataset is broad enough to guide targeting decisions

Cleaned transactional data across customers, geography, occupations, and product amounts provides actionable targeting clarity.

11,251

Validated transaction rows covering customer, geography, and spend fields.

100%

Cleaned base with empty records removed and missing amounts resolved.

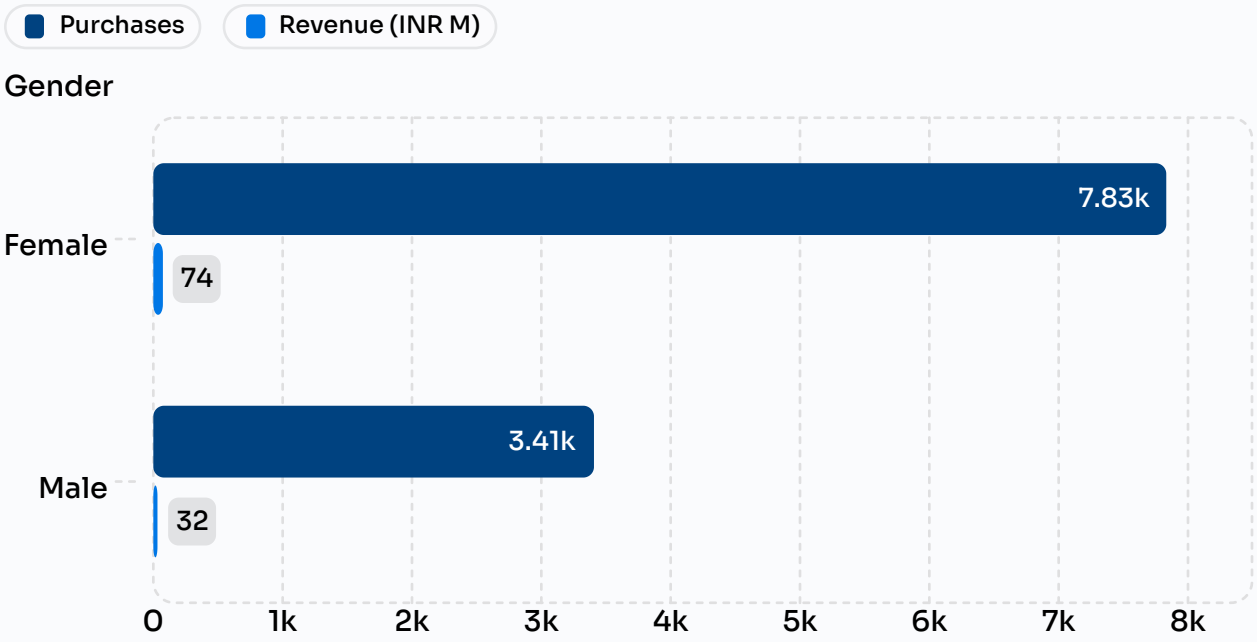

Targeting recommendations rely directly on scrubbed customer-level purchase histories rather than top-down assumptions.

DEMOGRAPHIC ENGINE

Women generate the larger customer and revenue base

Purchases and spend reveal a steep gender divergence: female shoppers generate more than double the volume and revenue.

COMMERCIAL MANDATE

Protect core share while testing male acquisition

Female shoppers drove 7,832 purchases and roughly 74M revenue, compared to 3,407 orders and 32M from men.

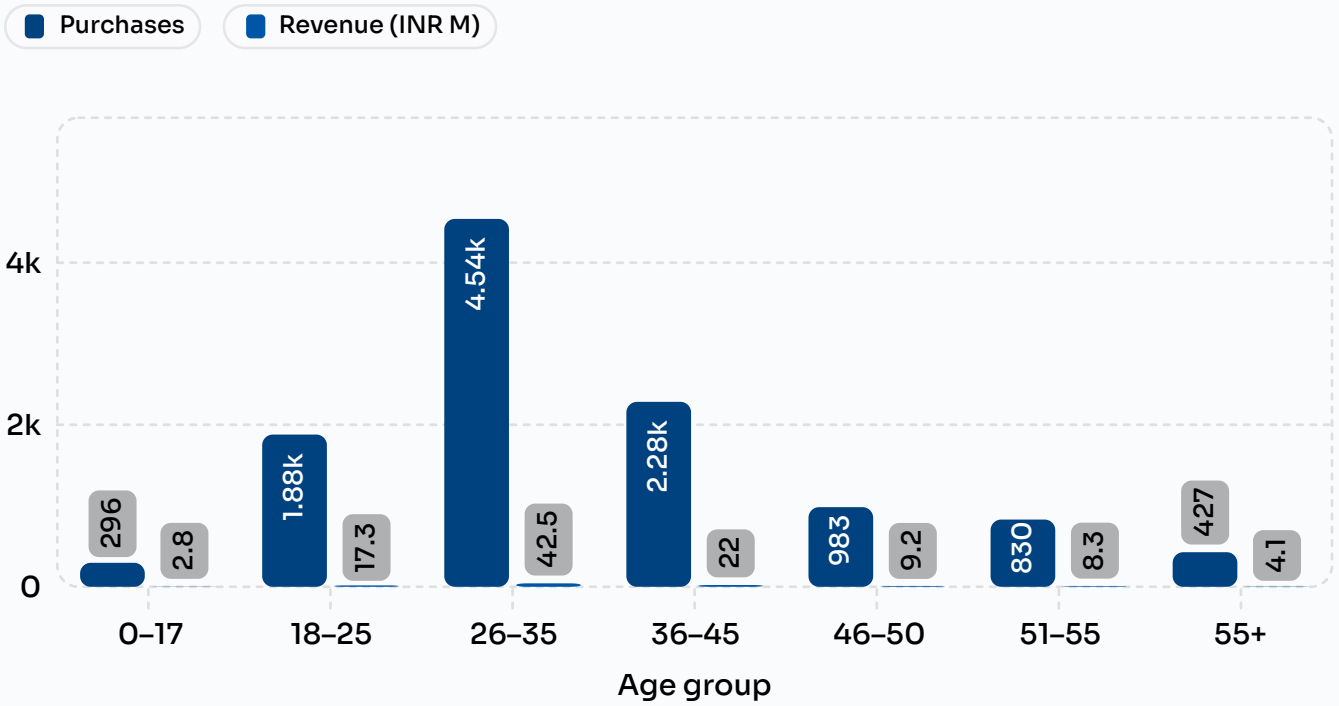

Prioritize the proven female buyer while piloting targeted gifting and convenience offers for men.

AGE DEMOGRAPHICS

Customers aged 26–35 are the commercial center of gravity

Young working adults dominate transaction volume and outspend every other cohort by a wide margin.

4,541 purchases · ~42.5M revenue

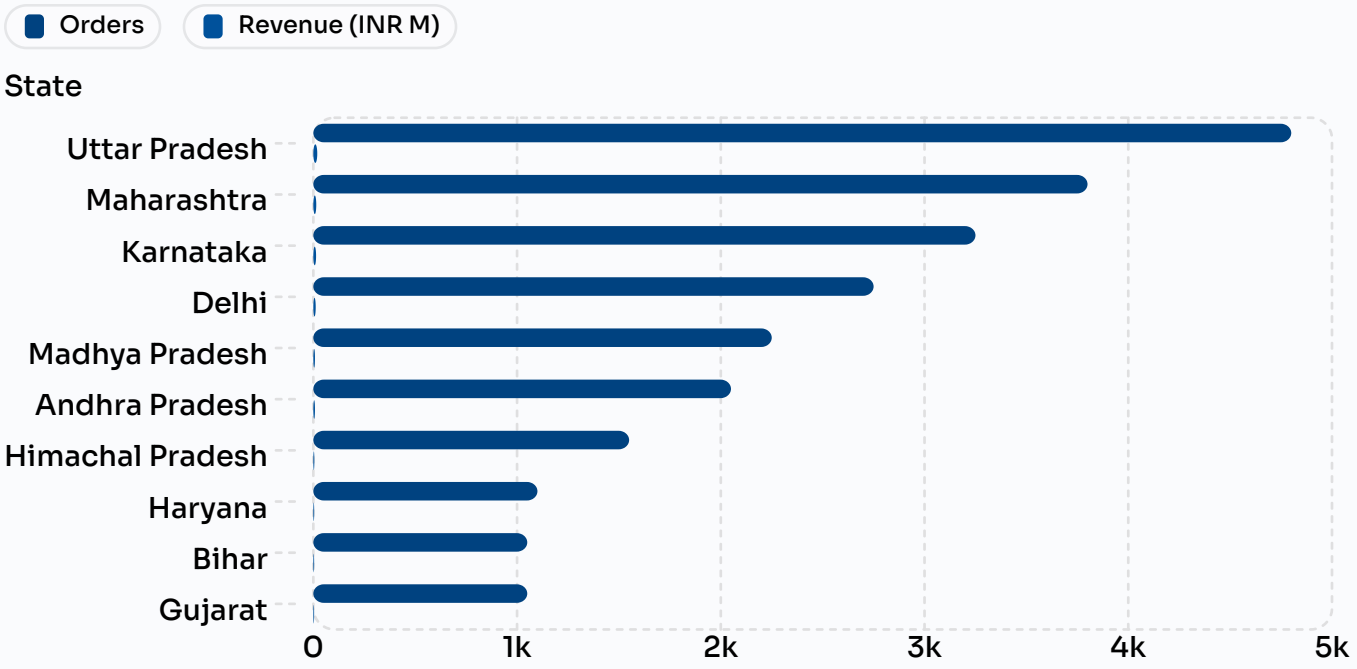

The 26–35 cohort nearly doubles the 36–45 cohort (~22.0M). Focus product bundling and digital creative on younger professionals.

GEOGRAPHIC CONCENTRATION

Uttar Pradesh is the lead expansion market

Three states account for the bulk of demand: Uttar Pradesh leads in both volume and revenue, followed by Maharashtra and Karnataka.

~47.2M

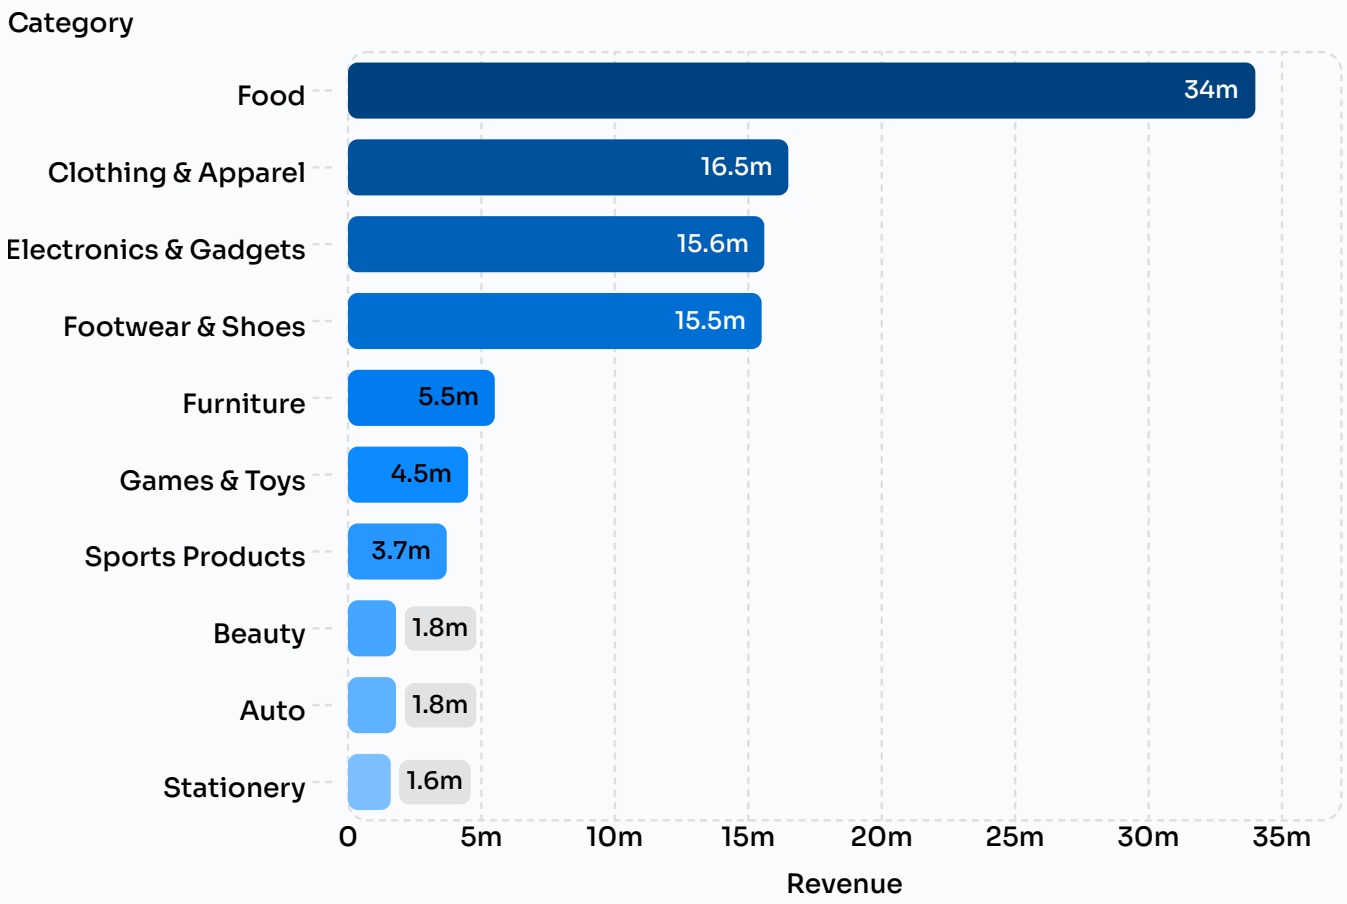

Combined revenue from the top 3 states out of ~91.9M total mapped.

Deepen local roots first

Uttar Pradesh (~19.3M, 4,800 orders), Maharashtra (~14.4M), and Karnataka (~13.5M) demand dense field execution before spreading wide.

Food is the anchor category, with three strong follow-ons

- Food: approximately 34 million in revenue, more than double any secondary category
- Next tier: Clothing & Apparel at approximately 16.5 million; Electronics & Gadgets at approximately 15.6 million; Footwear & Shoes at approximately 15.5 million
- Use Food to bring customers in, then cross-sell apparel, electronics, and footwear.

OCCUPATION SEGMENTS

Workplace segments point to high-value demand pools

Target employer clusters and professional communities in the lead states.

RANK 01

~14.7 million

IT Sector

RANK 02

~13.0 million

Healthcare

RANK 03

~12.6 million

Aviation

Use occupation-specific offers instead of one broad promotion.

STRATEGIC PLAYBOOK

Turn the findings into three commercial plays

A unified commercial agenda built directly around proven buyer behavior and market concentration.

PLAY 01

Defend the core

Protect the dominant female shopper aged 26–35 with festive Food-led gift hampers, digital pre-orders, and seasonal convenience.

PLAY 02

Expand proven markets

Prioritize commercial depth in Uttar Pradesh, Maharashtra, and Karnataka before dispersing marketing budget into secondary states.

PLAY 03

Grow adjacent demand

Cross-sell apparel, electronics, and footwear from initial food baskets while testing targeted gifting offers for male customers.

EXECUTION ROADMAP

Sequence investment around evidence, not reach alone

Phase 1

Deepen assortment, promotion, and distribution in the top three states.

Phase 2

Tailor campaigns to IT, Healthcare, and Aviation audiences.

Phase 3

Measure basket expansion from Food into the next-tier categories and refine discounts for male shoppers.

ACTION PROTOCOL

Next decisions: where to place the next rupee

Immediate commercial choices and governing milestones required for the upcoming festive operating cycle.

Decision Area	Key Strategic Choice	Success Scorecard Metric
Expansion Territory	Confirm lead expansion focus between Uttar Pradesh, Maharashtra, or Karnataka.	Order growth & delivery SLA in top cluster
Core Proposition	Select pilot offer: Food-led bundles, category cross-sell, or male acquisition.	Customer acquisition cost & first-basket size
Performance Tracking	Establish weekly review rhythm tracking order velocity and category mix.	Attach rate into apparel & electronics

A rigorous test-and-learn scorecard ensures every rupee invested is measured against incremental volume, margin, and multi-category basket penetration.
